The Hindu wrote: "The topic is today, given the type of money that we have spent on making weddings rich, but treatment on the big screen is quite below what was expected" [8]. Times of India wrote "Although the message, which aims to convey is appreciable, the clumsy filming and a couple of songs that appear in the second half prevent Thirumanam from becoming an attractive family animator" [9]. GAUTHAMAN BHASKARAN DE NEWS18 wrote "The theme of great weddings of Indians can be something novel, but the way Cheran writes and treats the story is amateur.
